The first of these is the fact that the system is not a simple one, but a complex one.
 It is a system of many parts, each of which has its own function, and all of which are interrelated. The second fact is that the system is not static, but dynamic.
 It is constantly changing, and the changes are often rapid. The third fact is that the system is not perfect, but imperfect.
 It has many weaknesses, and these weaknesses are often the result of the complexity of the system. The fourth fact is that the system is not self-sufficient, but dependent on the environment. It needs the support of the environment in order to function properly. The fifth fact is that the system is not self-organizing, but requires external control. It needs the guidance of an external authority in order to maintain its order. The sixth fact is that the system is not self-repairing, but requires external assistance. It needs the help of an external authority in order to repair its weaknesses. The seventh fact is that the system is not self-sustaining, but requires external support. It needs the aid of an external authority in order to maintain its existence. The eighth fact is that the system is not self-protecting, but requires external defense. It needs the protection of an external authority in order to defend itself against its enemies.
 The ninth fact is that the system is not self-replicating, but requires external reproduction. It needs the help of an external authority in order to reproduce itself. The tenth fact is that the system is not self-terminating, but requires external control. It needs the guidance of an external authority in order to know when to stop.
